

Editor's Comment:

I think it should be published, I also think that there are some technical/scientific issues that still need to be resolved. The issue on IgM and IgG was not clearly resolved, which is what I think one of the Reviewers wanted to point out with the comment that seroprevalence does not always equate to infection. IgM is an indication of acute infection, while IgG may be present even after an infection has been resolved. This and some other minor issues still need to be clarified in the manuscript. It is important to ensure the quality of articles being published in order to guarantee the growth of the journal.
