Editor's Comment:

The paper presents a useful finding with regard to the use of water hyacinth. This plant is invasive and unwanted in many aquatic habitats, though this was not discussed in the paper. Developing a use values such a plant by removing it from aquatic habitats, therefore, is as they say "killing two birds with one stone".

However, the paper did not provide an argument for the specific dose of application for the plant. Yes, there are places here and there where the paper could be tightened legibility.

Otherwise, I find the paper useful and can be published in its current form.
